THE SCHUYLER CHRONICLES

Issue 29 November 2026

Quilting---A Stitch in Time

Quite some time ago a beautiful quilt was donated to the Town of Schuyler Historical Society. It is constructed of red and white squares with very detailed embroidery on each white square. It measures 5 ½ x 6 feet. After some research, we found that the quilt was stitched by the Ladies' Home Bureau in memory of Harold G. Brown. Mr. Brown's ancestors were among the first settlers in the Western Mohawk Valley area. He was a lifelong resident of the town of Schuyler and lived on Newport Road. He is believed to have set a record for being an election inspector for approximately 50 years in our town. Besides being a long-time election inspector, he also ran a feed store at Schuyler Corners behind what is now Manino's gas station. In 1969 he was honored for service to our township. From what we can piece together, Harold was born on October 3, 1900. "He graduated from Cornell University in 1918 with a Bachelor of Science degree. He was a veteran of WWI and was cited for distinguished service with the chemical warfare service." (Daily Press, Friday, March 28, 1969). He was a charter member of Utica Post 229, American Legion. Mr. Brown entered the feed business with his father in 1923 and retired in 1967. After Mr. Brown passed away, the quilt was given to the Bush family of Schuyler and was then graciously donated to the TOSHS.

The pictures below illustrate the beautiful artwork and the intricate patterns on the quilt.

A Brief History of Quilting

The earliest evidence of quilting goes back to ancient Egypt. Quilted garments were used for warmth and protection. Quilting was also found in China and Europe where it was used for clothing, bedding, and even armor padding in medieval times. It was very functional.

During the Middle Ages, it gained popularity in Europe, especially in Italy and France where quilts were made using intricate designs and luxurious fabrics for decorative purposes. By the 17th and 18th centuries, European settlers brought quilting to America. Colonial women made quilts from scraps of fabric by repurposing old clothing and textiles to create patchwork designs. They were mostly used for warmth in the harsh winters.

As fabric became more fashionable and production increased, quilting eventually evolved using more artistic designs. During the 19th century women would gather at quilting bees to sew, share patterns, pass down skills to younger girls, and, of course, share gossip. However, as the 20th century came along, quilting declined due to the rise of machined blankets. The Great Depression turned that trend around as people had to make due with what they had on hand. After the Depression during the mid-century quilting once again declined due to automation and machined blankets, but it was revived once again in the 1970s due to the interest of the American Bicentennial celebrations. Granny square crocheting and knitting were also very popular during that time. Quilting guilds formed across the country and artists began to explore quilting as a form of individual expression.

Modern quilting now uses bold designs, colors, and fabrics. It can also be much easier than in the colonial days if you use a sewing machine instead of hand stitching and if you buy quilting jelly rolls (It's a real thing! Google it!). These short cuts take the guess work and stress off the modern-day quilter.
